Published by the Students
of

Dublin High School

Dublin
Virginia

Dedication

To Miss Louise Francis, whose untiring efforts, sympathy, and understanding made this annual possible, we, the Annual Staff, dedicate MAPLE LEAVES of 1944.

Foreword

We are happy to present this, the second issue of Maple Leaves, to the faculty and students of our school; also to our friends and patrons whose interest and support have made our work a pleasure.

Appreciation

We are deeply grateful to

Mrs. Delphin Litteral

for her kindness and patience in working with our staff to produce the pictures for this annual also to

Miss Elsie Repass

for her splendid work in typing
and to all those whose generous advertising has made this publication possible

Class Will

The Senior Class of Dublin High on this day, May 26, 1944 do hereby will and bequeath to their successors, the Junior Class, the following possessions:

David Taylor's way with the women to Merle Whitt and Charles Morehead, Jr.

Durwood Anderson's small feet and big mouth to Ross Brown.

Betty Dulaney's blonde hair to Bobbie Pannell and Billie Eller.

George Tribble's shortness to Clarence Tolbert and Leona Haga.

Jack Slusher's business ability to Willard Akers.

Iris McCoy's short finger nails to Fern Bowers and Lorraine Brookman.

Bea Galloway's love for explosives in the Laboratory to Edith DeHarte and Dorothy Walker.

Ida Parks love for speech making to O. H. Morris, Jr. and Eunice Shelton.

Joe Bowman's friendly laugh to Herbert Shelton and Ernest Young.

Thomas Stillwell's ability to get along with teachers to Tommie Hedge and Archie Whitt.

Mildred Brammer's red hair to Genevieve Smith and Helen Sapanas. It will blend with their coats.

Elizabeth Sutton's love for Presbyterian ministers to Joan Graham and Virginia Walker.

Virginia Lyon's love for cats to Margaret Farmer and Della King.

Lorraine Tolbert's long fingernails to Mary Jane Dudley.

Gladys Farmer's big feet to Mary Southern and Ruth King.

David Stanton's position on the football squad to Billy Smith.

Class History

Sixty freshmen crowded into the hot auditorium on the twelfth day of September, 1940. Everyone was talking and pushing and of course we were doing our share. We had come from everywhere near Dublin—Mt. View, Newbern, Highland and New River.

We didn't hear what Mr. Jordan said and we don't remember who read the scripture. There were so many things to think about but there was one thing we all agreed upon—Mr. Jordan was wonderful!

After we were dismissed we returned to one room—much too crowded, 'til someone told us that we would be separated and we were—the agriculture boys with Mrs. Davidson as home room teacher and the rest of the class with Miss Mustard.. She knew that it was all new to us and tried to help us over the bumps.

We finally grew accustomed to the change of a new school and new ways of doing things and Mrs. Mullin and Messrs. Payne and Allison pulled us through those terrible math and history classes.

As vacations always pass quickly we were sophomores before we knew it. Forty-seven of us—all in one room and Mrs. Jones was our homeroom teacher. Students from Belspring joined us that year and they were swell folks too! Misses Chumbley and Hurley and Mr. Parker joined our faculty. This was such an exciting year! The Beta Club Convention in Roanoke was just about the nicest thing we ever experienced. A whole weekend of fun! We'll never forget it! But shucks! There's always something to take the joy out of living—exams. Then came vacation again but it wasn't quite as much fun because we missed our classmates.

Juniors, juniors at last! Forty-four of us with Miss Mustard as our homeroom teacher again—only she wasn't Miss Mustard but was now Mrs. Copenhaver. Mr. Wygal came as the new agricultural instructor. Miss Ratcliff, Mrs. Creger, and Miss Francis also joined our faculty. Classes were a little harder but all of it was so much fun. Many of our group joined the armed forces that year, some moved away and by the end of the year we numbered only thirty-five. We entertained the seniors and presented our play, "A Fortunate Calamity." All of this was so much fun and so was our hayride when the Suttons entertained our class at a weiner roast.

September 1, 1944—Seniors Yes we are the seniors this time but where on earth is everybody! Only sixteen of us but we have a nice homeroom. In fact, this year has been the best yet.

Misses Preston, Long and Morgan joined our faculty. We hope we didn't worry them too much in home ec, geometry, and chemistry.

This year has been one of privileges and fun and we appreciate both. Thanks go to Miss Francis for our theater party in February. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come'' gave us worlds of pleasure in presenting it, but best of all was the dance at Elizabeth Sutton's. It was a huge success and we are all deeply grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Sutton, Elizabeth, and Charles for this delightful evening.

It has been wonderful knowing everybody and being together. Our sincere thanks go to every teacher we've had. We shall never forget our days at Dublin and we hope that our school is none the worse for our having been here.

Prophecy

The flames and smoke from the fire had suddenly ceased to be ordinary flames and smoke and were taking on strange and sinister shapes. I laid down my pencil and paper, and gave up my futile attempts at writing a class prophecy and devoted my full attention to this fireside magic. The shapes were beginning to become plainer, and suddenly I realized I was seeing my classmates there; except that these people were adult, competent, and successful. Why, I was looking into the future! Here was my prophecy, right before my eyes. I wouldn't have to invent it in my mind. It could be true.

While I was gloating over the fact that I wouldn't have to spend my imagination on writing a prophecy, I suddenly saw a very familiar figure in white and I knew at once that it was Betty Dulaney. She was a nurse with the American Red Cross. She turned toward me and said, "I'm not the only one of your old classmates who became a nurse. Lorraine Tolbert and Virginia Lyons have both followed this profession. Lorraine is a Navy nurse and she is stationed in Hawaii, waiting patiently for the fleet to come in. Virginia is forever receiving praise for her excellent work in both curing and cheering patients in a large hospital in New York." I supposed she was too busy to say more, for she smiled then and began softly humming "Angels of Mercy" as she went back to her work. "Angels of Mercy, there's so much to do—the heavens are gray overhead—" The words went spinning through my head, when suddenly I heard a laugh, an unmistakable, undescribable laugh. It was Joe Bowman. He was standing in front of a huge building that was practically hidden by a sign that said "Bowman and Tribble, Inc." Joe then explained that he and George could talk more people out of more things by cooperating, so they had gone into a partnership and were now producing airplanes for civilian use on a very large scale. I was going to congratulate him on such achievements when he added that they also had a private airfield where their planes were tested by none other than Bea Galloway, when they were lucky enough to get her. She was usually busy with her duties in the Ferrying Command in South America. Can't you imagine what an asset cute little Bea is to Pan American!

Coming back down to earth, I noticed the fire was burning brighter and immediately I saw why. There was Gladys Farmer trying to bestow some of her knowledge on a particularly trying math class. Knowing Gladys could teach them if anyone could I left this little group, only to see another classroom. This time it was a home economics cottage and two efficient young ladies were kept busy seeing that no one was poisoned in the kitchen and that sewing students were sewing, not gossiping. They were none other than Iris McCoy and Ida Parks. I asked them if they always worked so hard and they answered that if they were to please the head of their administration, Jack Slusher, they had to. I always figured Jack would be something of that sort, and even after seeing that he had everything from a Ph.D. on down after his name, I really wasn't surprised.

The next picture I saw was of a farm or perhaps I should say an estate because it was so large. The owner and head man was none other than Durwood Anderson. Always the perfect farmer, he said that he was kept very busy seeing that things went as they should, and his favorite form of relaxation was going to the huge theater that had recently been built in Dublin. The owner, he told me, was David Taylor and I knew that David must be enjoying immensely not having to run the projecting machine.

Then the smell of ether and anesthetics brought me to a large hospital's operating room. David Stanton and Tom Stilwell were busy performing small miracles, and saving an endless number of lives.

The next scene was of a ship's dock, and Elizabeth Sutton was about to board a huge liner. She told me she was on her way back to China to complete the wonderful missionary work she and her husband, who was a Presbyterian minister, had started.

I was still eagerly watching the fire when I realized I had seen all of my classmates, and I was through with my prophecy. But no, because I suddenly saw myself. Was I a musician, a doctor, or anything suggesting achievement, (for either of these would make me very happy)? No! There I sat with my ear glued to the radio, while the calendar said "Wednesday" and the clock said "9:00 P. M." I was just out of this world!

The fire was burning very low now, but my thoughts of the future made it seem brighter and brighter, and suddenly I felt that that is the way our world, the senior world, would really be someday.

Maple Leaves

As Maple Leaves that take me back to Dublin High,
Come drifting to the ground,
There comes a true delightful sound
Of student voices calling—
Calling back o'er years when I
With scores of others,
Roamed that hill and wood
In gay and careless mood.

With each leaf that nestles on the grass,
Comes thoughts of some classmate
Who left our school to meet his fate,
And with the help kind fortune gave
To place himself in fame, alas!
Yes, both fame and fortune
For those laughing girls and boys,
Who knew at Dublin little else but joys

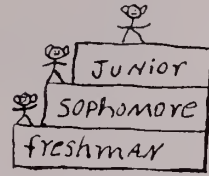

But those small Maple Leaves in '44,
Opened to a world of hate,
That saw our plans for peace too late
And struggled forth to meet their day
In an atmosphere both charged and sore,
Where mankind fought,
And youth looked forward to a task
Far grimmer than the past.

Those days, too, have passed
And left us everyone
A glorious place in freedom's sun;
But to this place we must prove
Our worthiness completely unsurpassed,
To hold this better world
Where in education's name each girl and lad
May know the pleasures we once had.

Gladys Farmer, '44

The Record

The "Dublin Dukes" played their first game October 1, at Rich Valley under the guidance of Coach Dick Fisher. Our boys played a hard game but Rich Valley scored in the last few minutes of the game giving them the victory with a score of 7-0.

Friday, October 15, the "Dukes" journeyed to Narrows. Tyree Farris saved the day by blocking a Narrows' punt and recovering it for a touchdown. Dublin held their own for the rest of the game and emerged victorious by a score of 7-6.

The "Dukes'" next game was at Blacksburg in Miles Stadium October 22. Tom Stillwell, Archie Whitt and David Stanton, backed by a hard charging line, made consistent gains and the "Dukes" won by a score of 21-7 making it two games straight for Dublin.

Friday, November 5, after two weeks rest, the "Dukes" had their first home game on their new athletic field. With the whole team playing heads up Dublin walked over Hillsville by a score of 40-0.

November 12 Marion came to Dublin with high hopes of crushing the "Dukes". After the first half which was evenly played, Dublin took command of the field and upset Marion by a score of 15-0.

For the last scheduled game of the season the "Dukes" journeyed to Hillsville. Every player on the team saw action in this game. Even Hillsville with its fighting spirit couldn't stop the Dukes, who won 33-0.

We wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to Mr. C. V. Connelly, our coach, for his excellent leadership, which was, in a large measure, responsible for our success; also to the townspeople, and to the faculty and students for their support.
